Minstrel Show To Be Given December 5, 10

"South America, Take It Away" will be the theme for the 19th annual Minstrel Show of the Breckinridge Training School. The show will have two performances, one on Wednesday evening, December 5, at 7:30 in the Breckinridge Auditorium, and the other the following Monday at the same time. Admission is 50 cents per person.

There will be 20 students taking part in the show, according to George Young, sponsor of the Minstrel Club. Nineteen of these are seniors, and will be making their final appearance with the show.

Numbers to be presented include novelty and comedy acts, riddles, tempo, and folk dances, vocal solos and duets, musical readings, accordion and clarinet solos, and dance duets.

Continually for the show centers around the kidnapping, in this, of the members of the Latin American who is host to a group of Hollywood actors.

Numbers to be sung by the entire cast are "South America, Take It Away," and "Flying Down to Rio."

Town, College Receive Salute In Radio Program Last Friday

College Alumna, Kay Engleman, Writes Script

Writing the script for a radio show about Morehead, which was broadcast on WLVW last Friday night, was something of a revelation for Kay Engleman, a senior in the first place, the town has changed considerably since she graduated from the college last year.

"When I was at Morehead, I didn't know much at all about it except that it was a college," she said in a telephone interview. "But now, I've been here almost 20 years to find out what an interesting place it is and how it has changed."

For example, Mrs. Engleman was "fascinated" by the story of the "moonlight school" which was used as the basis of her radio script. These schools were started by Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, described by Mrs. Engleman as "perhaps Morehead's most famous graduate." They were an attempt to combat illiteracy in this area, by teaching the children to read at night.

The schools were open nights, however, because of the difficulty people had in getting to school. The schools were the scene of miles of rugged hill country.

This moonlight school started a nation-wide movement for adult education, Mrs. Engleman said. Mrs. Engleman, known as Kay Friend when she was a student here, was exceptionally active on campus. She was the first editor of the Trail Blazer, taking over the office which was formerly a scholarship, only a few months after the paper was founded.

Mrs. Engleman is married to Wilfred Engleman, a graduate of the Eastern Kentucky college. She is the first editor of the Trail Blazer, taking over the office which was formerly a scholarship, only a few months after the paper was founded.

First Inkpot Issue On Sale; Cover Designed By Ann Felix

The cover for the current issue of the Inkpot, now on sale at the Bookstore, was designed by a student who is not in school this semester because of illness. Ann Felix, an art major, sent the design from her home in Ashland, where she is convalescing. She is a senior at the college.

Ann Felix Delta Kappa Gamma scholarship awarded last year will be doubled for the next semester, according to Naomi Claypool, head of the department and member of the sorority. Miss Felix has been out of school this semester because of illness, and so the group voted recently to award the entire year's stipend of $100 during the spring term.

The scholarship is awarded by the Eastern Kentucky section of Delta Kappa Gamma, a national honorary sorority of women in the teaching field.

Contributors include Wilma Leary, Kentucky sutiles, Sarah Lester, Charles Bowers, Phyllis Davis, Donald Paul, Joyce, an illustration by Harland Crawford, a senior English major. In his story, Mr. Crawford uses detail to make an impossible incident (the appearance of a monster) seem real. Another feature which catches the interest is a poem, "Nana," by William Martin, a graduate student.

Articles are on subjects ranging from Elton to Eat Early in the cafeteria, and "Chewin' Chewing Gum," to "Why I Came to College."

is planning to return to Morehead for the first time. This issue of the Inkpot, a student literary magazine, is the first one published this year. It contains stories, poetry, and articles by 17 contributors, 14 of whom are freshmen.

The "moonlight school" started by Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart to combat adult illiteracy in this area, will be the subject of a feature story in the Trail Blazer's December 11 issue.

This issue, the next to be published, will be a special (inaugural) edition honoring Dr. Charles R. Spain, president of the college.

After her graduation from the college, Mrs. Engleman went into radio work with the Lexington station WLVW. From there she went to Cincinnati to do free lance writing and acting. This was followed by six years' work with a Chicago advertising agency. Then she returned to Cincinnati to her present job on the staff of station WLVW.

In addition to doing script writing, Mrs. Engleman has been a member of the station's dramatic series. She has worked with the program series Builders of Destiny, Our American, and Village Green. Friday's program about Morehead was one of a series, titled, "This Land of Ours," which is "the living story of towns, villages, and cities of the Midwest."

Council Plans Student Handbook; Needs Editor

A student handbook, to be published for the first time next semester, is being planned by the Student Council. Still to be appointed is a student editor.

The book would include descriptions of clubs and their activities, dormitory regulations, and write-ups of campus events, such as Homecoming. This first issue would probably be mimeographed, but it is hoped that the handbook may be in print by next fall.

Students who wish to apply for the position of editor should see Dean Marjorie Palquist.

Plan Christmas Party

A Christmas party has been scheduled by the local chapter of the Future Teachers of America for Tuesday, December 11, at 6:30 p. m. in the lobby of Allie Young Hall.

Braun, Haggan Cited By WLVW For Leadership

Two members of the faculty who have been with the college since its founding in 1923, were saluted in a program which was broadcast over Cincinnati station WLVW last Friday night. They are Catherine Braun, geography instructor, and Hetty Haggan, head of the department of agriculture.

The program, one of a series on cities and towns of this area, described Miss Braun as a "courageous" member of the Revellers' Dramatic Club, and president of her junior and senior classes. An English major, she was awarded the debate medal for two years. Besides taking part in all these activities, Mrs. Engleman helped pay her expenses by working in the library and dormitory.

After her graduation from the college, Mrs. Engleman went into radio work with the Lexington station WLVW. From there she went to Cincinnati to do free lance writing and acting. Home Ec Staff Gives Reception For Fresh Tomorrow

A reception for freshmen will be given by the home economics department staff, as today's orientation class program. It is intended as a practical follow-up of last week's discussion, by department head Patti Bolin, of social functions and table manners.

Cellar Dwellers Give Bohemian Ball In Basement Tomorrow

Even the Cellar Dwellers won't recognize Thompson Hall basement when they Bohemian Ball gets underway tomorrow (Wednesday) night at 8 o'clock.

The scene show will be a ball room, complete with orchestra, decorations, and refreshments. The assembly room will be a "bistro" with tables lighted by candles in wire kettles, a garden setting, the best Greenwich Village manner, and waiters in costumes.

Soft lights, "live" music, refreshments, intimate atmosphere—all this for only 30 cents a person or 75 cents a couple.

This unique dance is a fundraising scheme for a unique project, the organization, the Cellar Dwellers are a group of students and faculty members whose offices and activities are centered in Thompson Hall basement.

The Bohemian Ball, which is expected to become an annual affair, is being planned by committees under the leadership of the orchestra, the percussion, and the trumpet. "The Tones" will feature Jim Andy Caudill and his trumpet, "The Tones" will feature Jim Andy Caudill and his trumpet, "The Tones" will feature Jim Andy Caudill and his trumpet.

Constitution Of Council Gets Revision

A revised Student Council constitution is now being drawn up by a special committee under the chairmanship of Stanley Wheeler, senior member. It was announced yesterday. The committee members hope to return to discuss the changes which are to be made.

Major change will be to insert the legislation passed during the past year. This includes an increase in Council membership, and a change in the handling of election of officers.

The membership has been increased by representatives from each of the dormitories and from Vet's Village. This ruling, passed last spring, was intended to give more direct representation to these groups.

This year's officers were the first to be elected under the new ruling concerning elections. The entire student body voted during a convocation, instead of at balloting booths as in the past. This way a greater number of votes were obtained, but Council members hope to return to discuss the changes which are to be made.

Activities Calendar For Coming Weeks

Nov. 21 — Collar Dwellers Bohemian Ball, basement of Thompson Hall, 8 p. m.

Nov. 22—Thanksgiving holiday. One day only. Basketball, vs. Fort Knox, college gym, 7:30 p. m.

Nov. 23 — Crescendo Club juke box dance, new student lounge (if ready for use), 8 p. m.

Nov. 30—Basketball vs. Union College, college gym, 7:30 p. m.

Spain To Be Inaugurated In Ceremony Here

Purpose of the lounge, according to Marjorie Palquist, dean of students, is to give students and organizations a place where they can place other than the gymnasium and the grill itself, where they may meet, discuss, and have recreation all together.

A calendar will be set up so that the various student organizations can engage it for meetings, juke box dances, and various other purposes. The plan is to have the grill open during the lounge, as a concession of the organization in charge. Except when the lounge is a social group, the lounge will be open to the entire student body.

Palquist said the lounge will be the cafeteria, will be manager of the lounge.

The campus first television set will be located in the new lounge, and should be installed by today, according to Harbert H. Hogan, business manager of the college. A new lounge has been purchased by the college and will be used in either the grill or the lounge. The grill formerly in the grill was a rented one.

Furnishings for the lounge will be scanty for a while. It is hoped that the organizations which use it for functions like juke box dances will contribute to the purchase of the lounge. The purchase of the lounge will be a large part of the lounge, and in this way a larger lounge will be available.

Although the opening date is not set, the lounge will be a large part of the lounge, and in this way a larger lounge will be available.

New Room Is Built Next To College Grill

Morehead students will soon view television and dance to music from a new juke box in a student lounge, now under construction, which will be operated in conjunction with the college grill. The lounge will be opened as soon as structural work is completed, perhaps by the end of this week.

Graduate School Scholarships Available, Committee Writes

The faculty committee on Fellowships and Scholarships has submitted the following article on graduate school scholarships. The committee's purpose is to acquaint students with the opportunities available to them for obtaining such awards.

In the next issue of the Trail Blazer, the committee will tell about those Morehead graduates who have been recipients of some type of award for use in advanced study.

Members of the committee are Charles Wilkes, Wilhelm Exelbirt, George Young, and Nolan Fowler.

Few subjects are discussed with more earnestness today on the American college campus than that of scholarships, athletic scholarships, that is. Scant attention is paid to any other type of scholarship. Many students, sad to say, don't know that any other kind exists. As a matter of fact, not many scholarships are accorded to those in music and athletics, in the average college. They are usually found in the graduate school level, and it is graduate school scholarships that will be discussed in this article.

Every spring the various universities of America, plus many of the larger colleges, award scholarships, fellowships, and assistantships, totalling in the thousands to those students who are graduating from college with superior academic records. These awards vary. Some simply take care of the tuition and departmental fees of the student in graduate or professional school, while others are sufficiently large to cover all legitimate expenses. Some have certain duties attached to them; others do not. Practically all of the awards are for one year with a chance of renewal. If good work is done, most of the awards are on a competitive basis—that is, they go to those students who have completed the best scholastic averages during their undergraduate experience.

In addition to the great number of awards made in the United States each year, over a thousand are available annually to Americans who graduate from a foreign land. Probably the best known of the latter type are Fulbright grants, which total in excess of 600 each year. The winner of one of the latter grants will undoubtedly have his legitimate expenses during one year of study abroad, including the cost of transportation to and from the foreign country. Charles Apel was the sole recipient of these scholarships this fall.

The graduates of Morehead have not been too successful over the years in obtaining any of the above awards. This is due to the fact that many of the graduates have not had average high enough to merit consideration for awards. Some good students, however, have undoubtedly been deprived of securing a scholarship because he or she didn't know that such things existed, or was ignorant of the procedures in an attempt to be followed for success.

In an attempt to remedy this deficiency, the college has established a Committee on Scholarships and Fellowships. The chairperson of this committee is to help deserving Morehead graduates to secure awards that will help their entrance into graduate or professional school may be facilitated.

The members of this committee are Professors Wilkes, Exelbirt, George Young, and Fowler. Any one of this quartet will be glad to discuss this problem with you. If you have good average (.725 or above; the higher the better), and are seriously thinking of doing advanced work, why not drop around to the office of one of the above and talk things over? Remember that if your marks are high enough when you graduate here it is possible for you to go to graduate school, medical school, law school, etc., for at least one year, perhaps more, at little or no cost to yourself. Such an opportunity is to go to neglect.

New Checker In Cafeteria

Recently installed in the cafeteria is a checker which licenses students who wish to keep a close check on their expenditures. According to Bernard Clemens, cafeteria manager, the checker will help students keep budgets in line with fluctuating food prices.

Morehead Cagers, Green But Hopeful, Meet Fort Knox In Thanksgiving Opener

By Bob Warnock
Coach Edly Johnson will get a first look at his Eagles in action on Thanksgiving, when they take the floor against a Fort Knox team. With only two lettermen left from last year's team, lack of experience will probably be the major draw-back in this and other early games.

Coach Johnson says he knows little of the Fort Knox team, but understands they have several boys with college experience. One of these is Kenny Reeves, who made a quite a name for himself at the University of Louisville. The game will be at 7:30 p. m. in the college gym.

The only two lettermen from last year's Eagles are Don Miller and Elza Whalen, both guards. The armed services took all but one of the high scorers of last year's team, Jack Baker, did not return to school this semester. However, quite a few of the boys on the squad saw some action last year, and should shape up well during the season.

Another draw-back this year is lack of height. It is hoped that as though Morehead has a scrappy club with a fine fighting spirit and attitude. They say they figure give some of the OVC favorites a few worries before the end of the season.

Here's a look at the individual players.
Don Whitehouse
Don was an all-state guard at Louisville Manual last year, and is expected to see a lot of action this year.

Henry Telle
"Fats," as he is better known around the campus, is the smallest.

Class Teams Play WRA-Sponsored Volleyball Game
WRA members played hostess for a volleyball game between two women's physical education class teams at their regular play Night November 12. The teams consisted of the ten best players from the 11 o'clock and the one o'clock classes.

An exhibition of good playing was shown by both teams. Winner of the game was the 11 o'clock class.

Line-ups were:
Eleven o'clock class: Pat Glascock, captain; Priscilla Ferguson, Joyce Standiford, Kay Lockhart, Nellie Ruth, Barbara Elizabeth Williamson, Jean Ingram, Janice Salmons, and Janice Skeggs.

One o'clock class: Jerry Linton, captain; Frances Bellamy, Faith Sanford, Jeanette Hampton, Glenna Thompson, Louise Stafford, Maudine Jones, Helen Brannan, Lois Bailey, and Clara Fannin.

est man on the team. He coordinates well with his teammates, and should see plenty of action.
Wendell Jones
Jones is a safe foot forward who transferred from U.K. He is an exceptionally good rebounder and has a fine one handed shot.

Bob Taylor
In spite of his size, Taylor is a fine performer in pivot. His five foot 11 is rather short for a college pivot man, but he should be a good player.

George Murphy
This six foot two forward from Indiana is showing up as a good rebounder and team player.

Neville Garrett
Garrett is a six foot 3 1/2 forward. He is a freshman and, with a fine high school record behind him, is considered a good prospect.

Don Miller
Don has been a main stay of the Eagles for the past three seasons. He was picked for the Ohio Valley Conference team last year. This will be his last year of competition as an Eagle.

Park Prater
Park is not a newcomer to Morehead fans, for he played for the Eagles back in '46 and '47. Coach Johnson is hoping the big boy will regain his form, and if he does, Park should be a great asset.

Elza Whalen
Elza is in his third year of play for the Eagles and is the

Addresses School Groups During Education Week
In connection with National Education Week, President Charles R. Spain addressed several city school meetings last week. He spoke at an Open House meeting sponsored by the Fort Thomas, Ky., city schools last Tuesday evening, and addressed the student assembly at Mt. Sterling high school on Wednesday.

Wednesday evening he spoke to the Kiwanis Club of West Liberty.

only other regular besides Miller who is returning this year.
Eddie Mahler
Eddie is a sophomore who saw some action last year and will see a lot more this year. Eddie is big and possesses a fine hook shot. He will be used at both forward and center.

Bob McLean
Mac is a 6-5 forward whom Coach Johnson is counting on for a good season. If Bob keeps improving he will be a great help to the Eagles.

Dave Harris
Dave, another of the fine guards that Johnson has to pick from this year, is playing his second year as an Eagle. He did not see too much action last year, but he saw us some fine set shots.

Tom Watkins
Dave was a member of the Louisville Manual team of last year. He is a fine play maker and has a good one handed shot.

Tom is a third member of the Louisville Manual team that we have here at Morehead. He is a good rebounder and will see considerable action this season as an Eagle.

Faculty Committee On Extension Work Appointed
A faculty committee on Correspondence and Extension was recently appointed by President Charles R. Spain to expedite the development and planning of the college's correspondence and extension program.

Members are John H. Long, chairman; Julius Fart, Zell S. Walter, Clifford Rader, and Ross Lowe.

The committee is charged with the responsibility of approving courses to be offered by correspondence, reviewing and editing lessons of these courses, and setting other policies which may be needed, according to Dr. Spain.

William C. Caudill, public relations director for the college, and also Director of Extension, will be an ex-officio member of the committee.

German Student-Farmer Talks To Ag Club At Dinner Meeting

Admiration for the American way of specialization in agriculture was expressed by a 17-year-old exchange student from Germany at the meeting of the Agriculture Club November 1. Edward Rogge, who is being sponsored in the United States by the American Farm Bureau, is living on a farm in Clark County and is a senior at Clark County High School.

Mr. Rogge addressed the club members at a dinner meeting in the home of Henry Haggan, sponsor. Specialization in agriculture was superior to the German way in which each farmer raises everything the family will need, Mr. Rogge said, because the farmer specialist can afford to buy machinery for his particular type of work. The German farmer, if he has many crops, cannot afford machinery for each separate crop.

In education Mr. Rogge also prefers the American way of specialization. In the German universities each student takes the same subjects. "It is better if you do not take so many subjects, but specialize and learn fewer things better," he said.

The main purpose of his coming to America is to learn American methods of agriculture and to become better acquainted with the American way of life. When he returns to Germany, he will work for three years on farms, different ones each year, teaching the farmer better methods of agriculture.

After his talk Mr. Rogge was presented with a sport jacket and a school emblem from the Agriculture Club, the Rowan County Farm Bureau, and Jim Polphrey, a local merchant. The club also gave a token of its appreciation to Mr. Cullen, with whom Mr. Rogge is now living. Mr. Cullen is very impressed with Mr. Rogge's eagerness to learn and determination to get ahead. He remarked, "The people in the United States could learn much from Eddie."

Long, Covington To Take Part In SAMLAA Meeting

Two members of the English staff, John Long and W. P. Covington, will participate in the South Atlantic Modern Language Association meeting in Atlanta, Ga., on Nov. 23 and 24. Dr. Long will read a paper on "Dramatic Functions of the Music in 'The Tempest'."

Mr. Covington will do a critique on the speech to be given by Edward Foster of the Georgia Tech English Department. Foster's paper will be concerned with three of Maxwell Anderson's plays, "The Eve of St. Mark," "Joan of Lorraine," and "Key Largo."

Later Hours For Girls' Dorms Wanted 4-1 By Men And 2-1 By Women, Poll Shows

By Phyllis Ernst

A majority of students here believe that women who live in the dormitories have to be in too early in the evening, according to a student opinion poll recently conducted on the campus. The students also think that freshmen should be permitted to stay out as late as upperclassmen. These conclusions were drawn from a cross-section poll of 175 male and female students.

The poll was designed to inform students and faculty of the general student opinion on dormitory rules. Seven questions were included in the forms. All questions were not answered on all forms.

The questions, and the results obtained are as follows:

1. Do you think the women living in the dormitories have to be in too early in the evening? Yes 126, No 40.

2. Do you think the women in Allie Young Hall should be permitted to remain out as late as those in Fields Hall? Yes 126, No 40.

3. Are the penalties for being late too severe? Yes 126, No 40.

4. Should there be more leniency in the hours for special events? Yes 126, No 40.

5. Do you approve of the system of fining in the men's dormitories? Yes 126, No 40.

6. Would you prefer a "dormitory study center," or one to be in favor of the dormitory head?

setting the penalties? "Student Court" 115, Dormitory Head 52. Various comments were made about the hours that are now. Several of the men said, "Give the girls a break." A junior in Fields Hall wrote, "Boys should be in at certain hours." George Ann Barker thinks, "Allie Young girls should stay out a little later, but not as late as those in Fields because you need something to look forward to." Sammy Miller considers Friday, Saturday better late nights than Saturday and Sunday and says, "I think we might be allowed until 12:00 on these nights." Betty Raye Meade said, "I think the lobbies should be available for use until 10:00 during the week and 11:00 on week-ends."

The students seemed very interested in the poll. A common question asked by the women when they were approached was, "Will it do us any good?"

The men said 4 to 1 that the women had to be in too early and the women said 2 to 1 that they had to be in too early. Apparently the men are more interested in the women having later hours than are the women.

Education Benefits Society And Individual, Rader Says

This is the second of a series of articles, written by members of the faculty, on the purpose of a college education. It is hoped that these articles will help each student form his own opinion on the subject, as well as give him an idea of what his instructors are trying to accomplish.

Written by Clifford Rader, head of the department of history and government, Dr. Rader has degrees from Eastern (Ky.) State College and the University of Kentucky. He has been at Morehead since 1947.

The first article of the series was by John Long of the English department, who is the first being Monroe Wicker, principal of Breckinridge Training School, will present his views.

By Dr. Clifford Rader

It is only natural that college students should think of a college education in terms of money and returns which they expect from it. They are making an investment in time, effort, and money, and, just as any other investor, they are concerned about the dividends. What possible answer is there to the question that every conscientious student should ask himself: "What benefits may I reasonably expect from my college education?"

In dealing with this question in the past, major emphasis has been placed upon the material or financial returns. Students have been encouraged to complete education in order to be able to earn a higher income, and to secure employment which carries more prestige and which involves, at least what might appear to be, easier work.

And, to a very large extent, a college education can be justified on that one basis alone. Certainly it is becoming more true every day that the lack of a college education is a serious handicap in securing employment, and in a multitude of instances it is an absolute barrier to advancement or promotion. Throughout the government, the nation's greatest employer, more and more avenues of employment and promotion are being restricted to the college-trained only. And throughout the world of affairs in general the odds favoring a successful career lie heavily on the side of those who have acquired a college education.

Yet this has been the strong selling point in the past and indeed it is a factor which the college student of today should not be unmindful.

On the other hand, current thinking among educators seems to be coming around more and more to the idea that the greatest values of a college education are to be found not in the material rewards, but in the fuller, more balanced and satisfied life which it makes possible. Certainly it should be emphasized that education does open up avenues of employment, interests, and appreciation not within the comprehension of the uneducated. It is the capacity to live a more balanced and abundant life.

It is the returns of this type, however, that are most difficult to define and explain because they are intangible, and hard to visualize by those who vision has not been broadened by education. Accustomed as they have been to the material rewards, they have been least emphasized in the past, although their importance could hardly be exaggerated.

In a democratic country education takes on added value beyond those which accrue to the individual. Long ago Aristotle referred to politics as the most sovereign of the sciences since it is "politics that determines what shall be done and by what means they should be learned." All of

Bookstore Offers New Line, Puts TV Set On Display

The College Bookstore has added to its stock a new line of soaps, lotions, shaving cream, and other toilet articles, according to John Collis, manager. The bookstore is also handling special offer subscriptions to Life and Time magazines, he said.

The television set, which was originally intended for Fields Hall and is now to be placed in the new Student Lounge, has been on display in the Bookstore for the past week or so.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Damron, and two year old Sandra Lee, relax in the living room of their apartment under the stadium.

Football Fans On Their Rooftop Fail To Disturb Stadium Couple

Although the atmosphere during football season is not always serene, and though people occasionally walk on top of their house, shouting and stomping, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Damron, with their little daughter, Sandra Lee, seem to enjoy living in the small apartment built under the stadium.

Mr. Damron, a major in art, and in industrial arts, has applied his education to his home, and part of the result may be seen in the above picture. The bookcase, coffee table, nutcracker bowl, and lamp were made by Mr. Damron as industrial arts projects. Some of the small bowls and whistlers come from the same source.

The Damrons moved into the stadium apartment at the beginning of the summer term and since that time Mr. Damron has almost completely renovated his two room and bath dwelling, with paint for the walls and sheetrock for the ceiling. After the summer term he helped in Vets Village.

Mr. Damron comes from Elkhorn City and is a junior here. Mrs. Damron is from Pikeville. When he graduates, they hope to move to Elkhorn City where Mr. Damron would like to teach high school.

Teach In Florida Schools

Mrs. Jessie A. Woods, Mrs. Julia P. Blair and Miss Alka Moore, all Morehead graduates and all former Ashland teachers are teaching in the Chevoke Junior High School at Orlando, Fla., this year.

Mrs. Woods teaches a special class for exceptional children. Mr. Blair teaches English and speech and Miss Moore is in the art department and also the library.

Increased Funds Asked By Schools

State Educational Agencies, including Morehead State College, made the greatest increases in this year's budget requests, according to a report made by the state Budget Division.
